Preface

The 2026 5th International Conference on Green Transport, Renewable Energy and Environment (GTREE 2026) was held during October 10-11, 2026 in Luxembourg. The conference aims to bring together leading academic scientists, researchers, and engineers to exchange and share their experience and results on all aspects of green transport, electric vehicle, renewable energy, power engineering, environmental technology, and sustainable development. It also aims to provide the premier interdisciplinary forum for researchers, practitioners, and educators to present and discuss the most recent innovations, trends, and concerns, practical challenges encountered and solutions adopted. GTREE 2026 constitutes a very important part in a series of international academic events. This conference will bring together researchers from the world and providing them with a high-qualified platform to share their latest studies and inspiring findings.

Conference Organizing Chair

Luxembourg